

Partnership for Children Board Members

Read to Children for 2016 Week of the Young Child

Anson County Partnership for Children board members showed their support for young children by reading in Pre-Kindergarten classrooms throughout the county during the Week of the Young Child. The readers selected a book and additional materials from the Partnership's Early Childhood Resource Center on the theme the classrooms were studying.

Megan Garner, Anson County Manager and Partnership Board member, said of her visit to the Open Doors Center for Children, "The children of Open Doors were a true joy to be around, and I appreciate our storytime together."

Anson County Partnership for Children would like to thank the board members for their support of young children throughout the year and especially during the Week of the Young Child.

Anson County Partnership for Children is a non-profit public/private organization which was formed in 1996 in response to the North Carolina Smart Start initiative. The Partnership's mission is "helping to make Anson County a better place to be a child and to raise a child." State Senator Visits Peachland-Polkton Elementary School

Senator Tom McInnis visited Peachland-Polkton Elementary School on Friday, April 8. This was in preparation of the school's annual field trip to the state capitol.

McInnis visited many classrooms and made a special visit to the fourth grade classes that are currently learning about their state government.

School Principal Travis Steagall stated that, "Senator McInnis is working extremely hard to assist our local leaders to obtain the resources that our county needs for continued growth. He puts an extreme emphasis on economic development and education. He has served as a Board of Education member in Richmond County, and knows the issues and challenges that rural schools and their counties face. Senator McInnis' efforts mean a great deal and are very encouraging. Our school appreciates the Senator taking time out of his busy schedule to visit."
