Health Department Staff Wearing
Green for Mental Health Awareness

May is known as Mental Health Month, a time planned to raise awareness and educate the public about the truth of living with mental illness and ways to manage mental health and wellness. For the month of May, the Anson County Health Department is supporting Mental Health Awareness by wearing green.

Mental health is an important part of overall health and wellbeing. Mental health refers to how we think, behave, and feel. An individual's mental health can change over time from several things. For example, working long hours or caring for an ill relative may have an impact on your mental health.

Mental illnesses are among the most common health conditions in the United States. More than 50% of people will be diagnosed with a mental illness, or a mental disorder at some point of their life. In the U.S. 1 in 5 Americans will experience a mental illness in a given year. 1 in 5 children, either currently or at some point during their life, have had a seriously shocking mental illness, and 1 in 25 Americans live with a serious mental illness, such as schizophrenia, bipolar disorder, or major depression.

There is no single cause for the development of mental illness. There are many things that can contribute to mental illness such as life experiences, ongoing medical conditions, biological reasons, alcohol or recreational drug use, and isolation. Suicide is often related to symptoms of mental illness. Suicide is the 10th leading cause of death the U.S. and the 2nd leading cause of death among people between the ages 15-34. Mood disorders, including major depression, dysthymic disorder, and bipolar disorder, are the third most common cause of hospitalization in the United States for both youth and adults between the ages 18 to 44.

Mental illness costs the U.S. about $193.2 billion per year. There are over 65.9 million physician office visits per year relating to mental disorders. In 2015, 75% of children between the ages 4 to 17 received treatment for their mental disorders. Individuals living with serious mental illness face an increased risk of physical health problems, such as heart disease, diabetes, and Human Immunodeficiency Virus (HIV). Adults in the U.S. living with serious mental health illness also die 25 years earlier than others.

Treatments and supportive services for mental and substance use disorders differ among each individual. Treatment should be personalized to fit each individuals' needs. For many people with behavioral health problems the most effective approach often involves a combination of counseling and medication. Supportive services, such as case or care management, can also play an important role in promoting health and recovery. Some support services include:

- Specialty community behavioral health centers
- Substance use disorder rehabilitation programs
- Independent providers
- Hospitals
- Community health centers
- Mutual support groups and peer-run organizations
- Community-based organizations
- Inpatient service providers
- Primary care programs with integrated behavioral health services
- And a variety of other community settings
