Tourism Vice-Chairman Sings Anson's Praises

In a release from Jeff Boothby, Vice-Chairman, ACTDA: To those who don't really know Anson County: We're one of the Jewels of the Carolinas, and I'm sure that most Ansonians feel that way. Transitioning from a hidden treasure buried in the heart of the Carolinas to a polished gem is not a quick or easy process as we have all experienced. Our neighboring counties may have the infrastructure in place that makes drawing in events, tourists, and industry much easier, but they do not have the picturesque views, enchanting farms and forests, and over 50 miles of rivers. We are not everyone else, we are Ansonians, and we are truly blessed to call Anson County our home.

I'm on several boards in this county because I care and am determined to make a more direct positive impact on my community. This year I have the pleasure of serving my neighbors as the Vice-Chairman of the Anson County Tourism Development Authority (ACTDA). We're funded by an occupancy tax for hotels and bed and breakfasts, and our goal is to put "more heads in beds" by increasing our local tourism.

The recession has hit us all hard, and our local tourism is no exception. We have seen a low point and have begun a rising trend towards recovery. I know that the recent projects from the ACTDA will have a direct impact on strengthening this recovery. By helping create, expand, and promote local events, continuing with the Blueway paddling trails project along the Rocky and Pee Dee Rivers, cooperative efforts with other local and regional organizations, and through advertising/marketing Anson County in a positive light, we will stand out as "North Carolina's best kept secret."

I'm not going to give my vote on expensive generalized advertising outlets because it is currently not an effective and efficient use of taxpayer dollars. All of us on the ACTDA board are; however, going to continue to work with our neighbors to develop effective strategies to boost Anson County and our tourism, and I know that I'm going to keep working hard for all my neighbors in Anson County because, through a stronger community and economy, we find part of the foundation needed to build a better and brighter tomorrow for all Ansonians and our children and grandchildren.

Respectfully, Jeff Boothby, R.F., Vice-Chairman ACTDA, Local Business Owner, Neighbor
